THE CHOLERA IN TENNESSEE—WARNING TO OUR CITY AUTHORITIES.

The appearance of the cholera in the cities of Nashville and Memphis has caused considerable alarm throughout the country and the probability of its extending to other points is causing much discussion in the papers, both North and South.

For two weeks the New York World has been exposing the dangers which lurk in the diseased atmosphere of that city—an atmosphere impregnated with poisonous gases generated by a defective sewerage system, and with deadly vapors arising from filthy streets. The disclosures made by the World are having a most salutary effect in arousing the authorities to the importance of taking sanitary measures to guard the city against pestilence and the local diseases incident to the summer season.

From the accounts in the Nashville papers, it is certain that the cholera originated there because of the defect of sanitary regulations. The disease is confined to the most unhealthy portion of the city—a point where foul and pestilential odors are emitted. The physicians say that with the proper sanitary renovation of the city the cholera would be suppressed in a very short time.

We have heard great complaints by several of our citizens of the filthy condition of the streets of Raleigh. Attention has frequently been called to this matter in our local columns. Those whose official duty it is to see that sanitary measures are enforced have a grave responsibility on their hands.

The sickly season is approaching. The health of Raleigh will depend to a very great extent upon the manner in which the city authorities shall preserve cleanliness throughout the limits of their jurisdiction. Let them take warning by the fate of Nashville and Memphis—whose citizens are rushing in great alarm and excitement from their infected homes, to escape the dangers of a fatal contagion. If the cholera should visit Raleigh this season it will be attributed to the causes given by the physicians of Nashville and Memphis—defective sanitary regulations.

VIRGINIA POLITICS.

We are gratified to see the unanimity with which our Virginia Conservative exchanges have sunk all minor issues, and are now battling together in a common cause. Local squabbles have been subordinated to the public good. Railroad quarrels have been suspended and a true patriotism has been shown to the resolve to keep Virginia in the hands of honest officials, and thus save the State from the disgrace and shame of a Radical triumph.

The letter of Gov. Wise has scarcely rippled the bosom of the political deep. It has pleased neither party, and is so impracticable and neutral as between Conservatives and Radicals that its author has received no encouragement from either side.

Upon the whole, it may be set down as a splendid failure and a most untimely production.

Gov. Wise's position has caused many of his personal friends the most poignant regret, who, while they utterly repudiate many of the sentiments in his letter, still treat the eccentric old gentleman with the respect due to his former services to the State.

The vigor, the good feeling, the unanimity, and the resolute tone of our Virginia cotemporaries, afford the highest evidence that when the crisis comes they will fall into line with promptness and zeal and concentrate their united fire upon the strongholds of the enemy.

We have the strongest hopes that the nominee of the Conservative party, whoever he may be, will win the fight and preserve our sister State from the clutches of Radical cormorants and political iconoclasts.

THE REWARD OF THE RENEGADES—THE MILITARY COMMISSION.

The Modocs who deserted Jack and tracked him to his strong-hold, are, as it appears from to-day's dispatches, to be treated with leniency, while Jack himself and those who stood faithfully by his fortunes, will be tried by a Military Commission, which is but another name for a Court Martial.

The Commission has already been organized and will soon enter upon its work. The trial will be short, sharp and decisive. Jack and his comrades will be found guilty of course, and then his fate will depend upon the President.

Military Commissions are always organized to convict, and as Jack's case presents some stronger points than poor Mrs. Suratt's, we all know what the verdict will be in advance.

Many of the ablest papers in the land have taken issue with Attorney General Williams, and deny the authority of the Government to organize a Military Commission to try the Modocs. Therefore, if Jack is convicted and sentenced we trust he will sue out a writ of Habeas Corpus and try the legality of the military Court.

If Jack is to die, let him die according to the law of the land, and not by an unauthorized and illegal tribunal.

Hooker Jim, and Steamboat Frank, and Bogus Charley and the other Modoc traitors who deserted their countrymen, are guilty of the most heinous crimes against the settlers, and it would be a singular freak of justice for them to be pardoned, while others perhaps less guilty are made to suffer the extreme penalty of the law.

HEROISM OF THE DAUGHTERS OF NORTH CAROLINA.

We copy elsewhere in our columns to-day, from the advance sheets of "Our Living and Our Dead," an account of an incident that transpired during the war, near Kingston, which illustrates the devoted patriotism of the noble daughters of North Carolina.

The world has never witnessed higher examples of female heroism than those displayed by the women of the South during the four years struggle between the two sections of our country.

Proud and honorable as is the record of our soldiers—the dauntless heroes of our country—their valor, history will yet reserve its brightest, purest pages for the angelic deeds of our matchless women, whose devotion during the war is only equaled by their efforts since, to keep fresh in memory the deeds of our fallen heroes by honoring their sacred dust.

GEN. ROSS' DENIAL.

Gen. Ross denies that his Oregon militia committed the dastardly and fiendish act of putting to death several of the Modoc prisoners.

The Government expresses considerable indignation over the disgraceful outrage. The Secretary of War thinks it was perpetrated by outlaws who have made good their escape.

At the time the dispatch was received containing the news of the massacre, we stated that the perpetrators were guilty of a greater crime than the murders of Canby and Thomas. The New York World of the 10th inst., has the following on the subject:

"The savagery is not all with the Modocs. In deliberate and cowardly atrocity the massacre of Modoc prisoners by white men yesterday was fully equal to the murder of General Canby by the Modocs. Not one of the murdered Modocs was even accused of complicity with that crime. Not one of them, as far as appears, was accused, even by rumor, of any crime deserving death. It was mere lust of slaughter that impelled men who had been proved unable to beat the Modocs in battle to murder them while they were under the protection of the power which these white men had invoked. There is nothing more cowardly or more cruel in the whole history of border warfare than this slaughter of defenseless prisoners. For whatever crimes these prisoners had committed—and it does not appear that they had committed any—they were on their way to be tried before a tribunal which was certain to award them the severest punishment they could be shown to have deserved. There was no excuse and no palliation for the massacre. It concerns the honor of the nation, already soiled many times in the bungling conduct of this miserable Modoc business, to see that the murderers are caught and convicted and punished. They can be found and identified without the shadow of a doubt, unless the Federal officers in Oregon are so slack about pursuing them as they have been in pursuing the Modocs. If they not punished the chief disgrace of this war will rest, not upon the savages who murdered Canby, but upon the nation which permitted prisoners under its protection to be murdered by men who could not plead for themselves the excuses of ignorance and barbarism which can be pleaded for the murderers of Canby. And if the neighbors of these men uphold their detestable deed, the extermination of white frontiersmen will become a far more necessary and desirable end than the extermination of Indian murderers."

ADVANCE SHEET OF "OUR LIVING AND OUR DEAD."

We acknowledge the receipt of a copy of the advance sheet of "Our Living and Our Dead," from which we learn that the first regular issue of the publication will appear July the first.

The first issue will contain some memorial verses, a sketch of John W. Ellis—North Carolina's first war Governor, Introductory Sketches of the Causes which brought on the War, Chronological Record of Events from January 1st, 1861, to May 20th, 1871, Anecdotes of Officers and Men, and Editorial Summary.

We make the following extract from the "Editorial Explanation and Appeal" in the advance sheet before us:

"Before a nobler auditory than listened to Aeneas, the editor of Our Living and Our Dead appears this day, impelled by filial duty to his mother, North Carolina, the heroic deeds of her sons in a struggle second to none in the annals of history or on the glowing pages of the poet. He, too, might exclaim, 'A sense of obligation to thee, O North Carolina, and to thy brave sons, forces me to revive great sorrow—to tell of immense sacrifices, of heroic struggles and brilliant victories, won in vain, against overwhelming odds of thousands slain, or maimed in useless attempts to secure rights of individuals and of States, of bravery unparalleled, and of sufferings unequalled—all to end in disaster and defeat, and in the loss of everything for which they bled and died.' As the memory of Aeneas recalled the great achievements of his compeers, national pride thrilled every fibre of his soul, and though he knew that the heroic deeds he recounted, culminated only in ruin and death, yet exultingly he proclaimed those deeds, while the listening Queen and noble Carthaginians applauded the actions of those whom he extolled. As, from time to time, the editor, in plain, unvarnished prose, shall recall the virtues and heroisms of the gallant men who died for North Carolina on a hundred battlefields, made glorious by their valor. State pride and kindred lineage will cause the blood to tingle warmly through the veins of all true sons and daughters of the State, who feel that these were their countrymen, these the fathers, brothers and husbands of their love.

Conscientiously, he knows, and faithfully, he trusts, the work shall be done. Intentionally, no scene shall be overdrawn, no picture too highly colored, no skirmish or battle untruthfully described. Justice to North Carolina soldiers demands only a plain statement of actual occurrences. Embellishments are unnecessary, and falsehoods are not required to bolster up doubtful reputations. Without disparagement of others, the editor can and will show that the government and people of his native State came as nearly as possible to the standard which duty has erected, as those of any other, and that the officers and privates whom he sent to the front, by their conduct, in camp and on the battle fields of a four years sanguinary contest, proved themselves worthy of a renown as imperishable as her own mountains, as bright and as glorious as the blue dome of heaven which is above her. When this is done, his labor of love will be complete, and every aspiration of his soul will be gratified.

Citizen of North Carolina, lovers of the good Old North State, he invokes your aid and co-operation in this great undertaking. Brother soldiers, who have survived the shock of arms, whose cannon have been cast into alarum or church bells, or serve as trophies of the victory of night over right, whose swords have been turned into ploughshares, and whose bayonets have been changed into pruning hooks, who have nothing left of the glory of battle but wounds and scars, and the proud memory of duty fully performed, and a knowledge of the great achievements of your comrades in arms, confidently he appeals to you to assist him in doing justice to our living and our dead."

Heroism of a Young Lady.

[From advance sheet of Our Living and Our Dead.]

News had been received at headquarters at Kingston in November 1862, that two Generals of the Federal army, one of them commanding in North Carolina, would on a certain day pass from Morehead to Newbern. It was advisable, in view of contemplated movements, to capture the train and secure the officers. At 10 p. m., I received orders to proceed at once to Trenton, take a detail of men from Major Nethercutt's command, and, if possible, on the day after, capture the train. At 2 a. m., I reached Trenton to find Major Nethercutt absent on one of his usual scouting expeditions. Awaiting his return at daylight, I made myself comfortable, and was about to indulge in a morning's nap when the clatter of the feet of a horse, at full gallop, caused me to step to the door of the Court House to see what was in the wind. The sentinel upon duty had halted the rider; and was receiving from him a paper to be delivered immediately to the officer in command. To my astonishment the note bore no address, and upon being opened the blank page showed a sheet of letter paper was countryman's to me, was breathing his jaded horse preparatory to return, but could give no other information than this: About 1 o'clock a. m., he was aroused from his slumbers, and on going to his door found a lady on horseback who gave him the note, and told him to take it, at full speed, to Trenton and give it to any Confederate officer he should find on duty there, as it contained important information. In a few moments thereafter, I was in the private room of a citizen of Trenton and his kind wife was warning me in iron for my use. Applied to the seemingly blank sheet of paper, heat soon enabled me to see what I desired. Foster had returned two days sooner than anticipated, and was to leave that very morning, with a force most accurately detailed on the sheet before me, on an expedition, having, in my opinion, the railroad bridge at Weldon for its objective point. The object of my expedition being thus frustrated, I returned immediately to Kingston, and gave the information I had procured from the intrepid daring soldier of Newbern's daughters to the officer in command. Steps were promptly taken by the General Commanding the Department, and such an array of troops was placed in front and upon the flanks of the Federal General as caused him rapidly to retrace his steps. The lady's name appeared to that note has never been told—her secret has been locked in my breast, and I am desirous to keep it, only requiring my pledge that the writer was worthy of credit. I doubt whether the writer of that note ever knew into whose hands it fell, or the good it accomplished. When I state that she was a young lady, tenderly reared and then in the very morning of maidenhood, her night ride at great personal risk, to convey useful information, can be properly appreciated.

At a meeting of the Board of Managers of the Cape Fear and Deep River Navigation Works, at the Executive office in Raleigh, on the 24th of June, 1873, the following resolutions were passed:

1. Resolved, That in accordance with the Act of the General Assembly, passed at the 12th of May, 1873, it is deemed advisable to sell the interests of the State of North Carolina, in the Cape Fear and Deep River Navigation Works.

2. Resolved, That the same be sold in two sections, viz: 1st, from Fayetteville to Sharp's Field Dam, 2d, from Sharp's Field Dam, including the same, up the Cape Fear and Deep River to the limits of the original charter.

3. Resolved, That the respective purchasers shall pay one-third of the price of their purchases in cash, and the remainder in one and two years from day of sale, with interest from said date, and that the same be secured by satisfactory bond, and a lien on the interests purchased. Title not to be made till payment in full.

4. Resolved, That the sale be upon the expressed condition, that the respective purchasers shall complete and put in operation, according to the terms of the charter, the portion purchased as follows, viz: from Fayetteville to Sharp's Field Dam, within 18 months from day of sale, and from Sharp's Field Dam, including the same, to the mill in Moore county within 3 years from day of sale.

5. Resolved, That H. A. London, Secretary, and B. I. Howe, Attorney of the Board, be authorized to make said sale at Lockville, in Chatham county, on the 8th of July, 1873, and that they give notice of the same in the "Era" and "News" in Raleigh, the "Star" and "Post" in Wilmington, North Carolina, and by poster.

We shall offer the above property for sale according to the above resolutions.

A terrible tragedy occurred in York county on Friday of last week. We get the following particulars from the Charlotte Observer of the 11th instant:

"It appears that a man by the name of John Holcombe, who had not been married long, became enraged at his wife, Emma Holcombe, on account of the intimacy which had grown up between her and a man or men in the neighborhood, and on last Friday morning taking his pistol, emptied the contents of four barrels into her body, killing her instantly."

No one saw the shooting; but a young man, a neighbor, coming up soon, Holcombe told him what he had done, and announced his intention to kill himself, at the same time asking him (the neighbor) to assist him with the body into the house. The young man was so stupefied with terror that he could do nothing at all, and Holcombe, walking up to where the body of his murdered wife lay, took out his pistol and placing it at his heart fired. He fell across the feet of the woman and died instantly."

The Hero of the Lava Beds—Gen. Jeff. C. Davis Upon Carolina Women.

Having succeeded in capturing the Modocs and thereby putting an end to the war, General Davis will be the hero of the hour. His fame will resound from the lava beds of California to the cod fisheries of New England. All that will keep his name from being immortal is that he be allowed to Captain Jack to slip through his fingers after he had him in his power.

General Davis has a fame in this section of the country. It is not one that a warrior would envy; but such as it is he should have the benefit of it in this the hour of his glory. He was an officer in Sherman's army that swept through this State in 1865. Whether he commanded a corps or a division we do not recollect, nor is it material to know. As the army of the North approached the line of Chester county, it came upon the home of Mr. Jno. Douglass, in Fairfield county. A courier came to this house and demanded a room for the headquarters of General Jeff. C. Davis. He brought with him a carpet, which he put down in the room, and other comforts and conveniences for his commander. Soon afterwards General Davis arrived and took possession of the quarters that had been prepared for him. Mrs. E. —, the daughter of Mr. Douglas and the wife of Rev. T. W. —, who was residing in the house and taking care of her aged father, appealed to him to protect the property on the place. He assured her that he would do so, and told her to pack up the articles that she deemed most valuable and deposit them in the room that he occupied, and he would be personally responsible for their safety. She did so, packed up in trunks everything that she deemed of special value and placed in his room. When he left the house she went into the room to recover her valuables and found that the trunks had been broken open and everything that was worth carrying off had been taken away. This is the hero of the Modoc war. These facts can be established by witnesses whose credibility no man would dare gainsay.

What Stokes Says About His New Trial.

At least 300 persons called at the Tombs prison yesterday to congratulate Edward S. Stokes on the decision of the Court of Appeals, granting him a new trial. Half an hour before the news arrived, Stokes, while in conversation with Warden Johnson, said: "I am confident that I will be given a new trial. I cannot but believe that the Court of Appeals will have sense enough to see the justice of my claims."

To this opinion Stokes has adhered since his conviction and sentence. He was conversing with his father in the corridor of the prison when Mr. Dos Passos, one of his counsel, brought the welcome intelligence in the shape of a telegram from Hon. Lyman Tremain, who has been attending to the case in Albany. Stokes said, "I knew I would receive justice," and was evidently much pleased with the result of his counsel's labors. In conversation with his counsel and a Times reporter, Mr. Stokes said: "I am confident that at this trial such a mass of evidence in my favor, which has not yet been produced, will be testified to as will place the affair in a wholly different light. I have been tried and been convicted from prejudice naturally formed by reading the newspaper versions of the story which were not only incorrect, but incomplete in almost every particular." Mr. Dos Passos, in answer to a question asked by the reporter, said that himself and his associates counsel had not yet decided on asking that Mr. Stokes be admitted to bail.

A Kentucky farmer refused to look at a sample sewing machine recently, as he always "sowed wheat by hand." He is related to the man who did not want a threshing machine on his farm; "for," said he, "give me a harness-tug or a barrel-stave and I can make my family to the mark, according to law 'Scripter.'"

A nugget of gold weighing seven ounces has been found on the land of an honest farmer at Hillsdale, Mich., who had been encouraged to prospect by the assurances of the State Geologist that all searches for gold in Michigan must prove nuggety in their results.

LOST-TO SOCIETY LOST!

BY JAMES B. M'QUILAN.

Touch not the fallen one—drive her away;
Guilt and sorrow, but beautiful clay,
Thou' her heart's bleeding,
Hear not her pleading
At any cost;
Forget what is good of her—
Speak, if you would, of her,
As lost—to society lost!

So sad and dejected—the poor and broken
Hearted,
Love, honor, and all save life have departed;
None proffered relief
To heal her heart's grief—
Oh, fearful the cost!
No one berried her—
Fashion condemns her
As lost—to society lost!

Heed not her sighs, her entreaties and tears,
Spurn her as one for whom nobody cares;
Lost and degraded,
To memory she's faded—
Trifling the cost.
Forget you her blessing her,
For kissed and caressed her—
She's lost—to society lost!

Oh, pity her not—she has fallen from her
grace,
Applaud her betrayer, receive him with
grace;
Smile on her deceiver,
But do not relieve her,
For such is propriety
In Christian society,
When lost—to society lost!

Innocent, loving, betrayed and forsaken;
Guilt and false—by life overtaken;
Let society blame her—
Try not to reclaim her,
At any cost.
Forget all her beauty—
So society's duty is done—
She's lost—to society lost!

Oh, merciless fashion, why do you nurture Hypocrisy's laws, and assassinate virtue;
How to the text,
Oh, in mature sex?
At any cost,
Frown on the fallen one—
And your pistal duty is done—
She's lost—to society lost!

Witnessing a Suicide.

A young man named Benjamin C. Scobee, of Bowling Green, Ky., got into a difficulty with another person Kentucky blood named Parrish, and Scobee shot and killed Parrish. That brought Scobee into additional trouble. His offence was reduced to a bailable one, and his old grandfather and grand-uncle and his father went on his bond until his trial. In the meantime he went to work on his grandfather's farm and was conducting himself properly. The other day he went to town and fell in with some young cronies, and the meeting was celebrated in several libations. In the evening Scobee returned to his grandfather's, accompanied by one of his young friends. He appeared to be a little, but very little, the worse for the liquor he had drunk, and expressed to his grandfather a regret that he had been weak enough to taste strong drink, especially as a serious trial was hanging over him and he was at liberty only on his good behavior and the bounty of his relatives. Soon after reaching home he went to the cabin of a negro near and got a pistol, which he knew he would find there. He then went into a grove, where he accidentally met the negro to whom the pistol belonged, and told him he was about to shoot himself. The negro obeyed, and presently the old man came out into the grove with him. The grandfathers treated the boy's expressed design rather lightly; told him to put the pistol away and come into the house and entertain his young friend. The boy made a motion to accede to the proposition, and the next instant he sent a pistol ball crashing through his brain, and died almost before his kind old grandfather could reach his side. The boy is out of his troubles, and the old negro doubtless saved himself from a charge of murder that might have gone hard with him.

Professor Delissier predicts that New England will be shaken by a serious earthquake on the 20th of August precisely. If New England, then Boston, and the New York papers are congratulating their city on the fact that probably the Hoosac Tunnel, through which the rival roads are to run to the West, may collapse, and the harbor fronts along Boston's Back Bay, to which the rival European steamers are to come to load the rival western freights, may fill up. If these two events happen, New York has still a chance of maintaining its first rank.

A Utica man, whose wife has been ill for some time, came down town one day with a face longer than the revised charter. A friend who met him grasped him by the hand in tearful sympathy and murmured: "Oh, when did she die?" "O, thunder!" was the solemn reply; "she ain't dead; she's cleaning house."

The return of Prince Napoleon to France is made a matter of much speculation, but the reason is perfectly clear. It was an unwise thing in M. Thiers to banish him in the first place.

A PROCLAMATION

BY THE Governor of North Carolina.

EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
Raleigh, June 13, 1873.

Be it known to all whom it may concern: That in conformity with section 8, chapter 133 of the acts of the General Assembly passed at the session of 1872-73, in relation to amendments of the Constitution of the State:

I, T. R. CALDWELL, Governor of the State of North Carolina, do hereby order so much of the preamble of said act as sets forth the alterations proposed and agreed to, to be published a second edition of said act to be published for thirty days preceding the first Thursday of August, 1873, in the following manner: To wit: First District—"North Carolinian," Raleigh; Second District—"Express," Washington; Third District—"Statesman," Fayetteville; Fourth District—"New North State," Greensboro; Fifth District—"Chronicle," Milton; Sixth District—"Democrat," Charlotte; Seventh District—"American," Statesville; Eighth District—"Pioneer," Salisbury; Ninth District—"Pioneer," Salisbury; Tenth District—"Pioneer," Salisbury.

Whereas, the last General Assembly, (three-fifths of the whole number of members of each House concurring), the bill containing the same having been read three times in each House, proposed the following alterations of the Constitution of the State, to wit: Alteration in relation to the public debt; alteration in relation to the office of Superintendent of Public Works; alteration in relation to the State census; alteration in relation to the sessions of the General Assembly; alteration in relation to the Code Commissioners; alteration in relation to Federal and other officers holding office; alteration in relation to the said act ordered to be published in the following words, to wit:

It shall be the duty of the Sheriff in each and every county in the State to open and read the several clauses of the Constitution on the said first Thursday in August next, and the same shall be kept open for one day, from the hour of eight o'clock in the morning to the hour of seven in the afternoon, when all persons qualified to vote according to the Constitution, may vote for or against the ratification of each of the said amendments, those desiring amendments to vote with the written or printed ticket "For Amendments," those of a contrary opinion to vote with a written or printed ticket "Against Amendments."

The alteration of County Commissioners and Inspectors of the Election is also called to the attention of said act of Assembly which provides that separate ballot-boxes shall be furnished for each amendment to be voted on.

Done at our City of Raleigh, the (14th) ninth day of June, A. D. 1873, and in the ninety-seventh year of American Independence.

T. R. CALDWELL,

By the Governor:

J. R. CALDWELL, Private Sec'y.

The papers named in the foregoing proclamation will publish as therein directed and forward bills to Executive office.
